

Call for ITM's 4th Journalist-in-Residence programme is open

A unique opportunity for reporters, producers, and editors to work on an exciting project in the realm of tropical medicine and global health

23-05-17

Dit is de omschrijving

The Journalist-in-Residence Programme of the Institute of Tropical Medicine Antwerp (ITM), Belgium, has arrived at its fourth edition. Talented print, broadcast, and online journalists from Africa, Asia and Latin-America are invited to apply by 30 June 2017. ITM's Journalist-in-Residence 2017 gets the opportunity to deepen his/her understanding of topical issues in tropical medicine and global health during a two-week stay in Antwerp.

Through fundamental and applied research, advanced education and expert services, ITM advances medical science to solve tropical, poverty-related and global health threats. The Journalist-in-Residence programme offers a unique opportunity for reporters, producers, and editors to work on an exciting project in the realm of tropical medicine and global health (a documentary, or a series of articles, for instance).

The selected journalist will interact with world experts in a wide range of topics in biomedical sciences, clinical sciences and public health. As ITM journalist-in-residence, s/he will have time to explore different areas or delve deeply into a single topic. There is also plenty of opportunity to participate in a variety of scientific meetings, seminars and other learning experiences, as well as enjoy quiet time for reading and independent study.

The initiative is part of ITM's capacity building programme in developing countries financed by the Belgian Directorate-General for Development (DGD). This year's edition is the fourth Journalist-in-Residence programme.

Read more about the work of the Journalists-in-Residence in 2014, 2015 and 2016.

Register now

- Online registration form Journalist-in-Residence